Darrell practices civil trial law with an emphasis on personal injury and wrongful death claims, fine art insurance litigation, products liability, construction law, premises liability, dram shop cases and insurance bad faith actions. His background also includes toxic tort litigation, probate matters, civil rights actions, free speech claims and commercial litigation.

Darrell has represented international corporations and insurance companies, as well as small businesses and individuals, throughout the state and federal courts of Texas and the Southwest. He has litigated cases involving mechanical bulls, dead horses, swarming Africanized bees, mixed martial arts, television preachers, roller coasters, free speech, internet dating websites, sexually explicit text messages, engagement rings, strip clubs, barbeque joints, exercise equipment, Christmas tree lights, Ferrari sports cars, Harley-Davidsons, pit bulls, horse-drawn carriages, diet drugs, saber tooth tiger fossils, natural disasters, forest fires, hurricanes, the Texas A&M bonfire, hydraulic fracking, 1980s synth-pop bands, rap stars, celebrity gossip bloggers, priceless fine art, worthless neon artwork, and many other interesting, oftentimes offbeat, matters.

Darrell has two sons who are active in lacrosse, football, swimming, gaming, and drums. In his spare time, he likes to check out live music around Austin, coach his sons, run Lady Bird Lake, sample new restaurants and food trailers around town, and occasionally gamble. Darrell is working his way through the Texas Monthly 50 Best BBQ Joints list. At last count, he has eaten at over half of the places on the list, the best of which so far has been 2M Smokehouse in San Antonio.

On his mother's side, Darrell traces his ancestry back to colonial pre-revolutionary America. Both his mother and sister are members of Daughters of the American Revolution. On his father's side, Darrell traces his ancestry through Belfast, Northern Ireland and ultimately Ellis Island, through which his paternal grandfather Cecil Cockcroft and grandmother Annie Sloan passed on their immigration to the United States, shortly after which his father Robert was born. Darrell's father enlisted in the US Army in 1943 during World War II and served in the Philippines and the Allied post-war occupation of Japan. The Cockcrofts originally hailed from York, England (hence the very un-Irish surname) but in 1798, Matthew Cockcroft was sent to Belfast during the Irish Rebellion as a member of the Yorkshire Fencibles infantry regiment and decided to stick around Northern Ireland, no doubt due to a local girl, after England quelled the insurrection.
