Tiffany Au specializes in first-party and third-party insurance defense litigation, representing insurance carriers, companies, and individuals throughout the state of Texas in areas of insurance coverage litigation, contractual and extra-contractual litigation, professional liability, and various casualty cases. She works with insurance companies and transportation companies to investigate, evaluate, defend, and resolve fatality and catastrophic personal injury claims.

Her practice also includes advising and defending insurers, reinsurers, and managing general agents in coverage and bad faith matters. To further help clients evaluate high exposure claims, Tiffany has crafted mock trials and exposure valuations to successfully predict outcomes at trials and mediation.

Background

She earned admission to the Texas Bar in 2012 and has a diverse legal background including interning for the Honorable Don D. Bush in the Eastern District of Texas, working as a municipal prosecutor for the City of Irving, and defending traffic tickets as an associate attorney at a firm in Fort Worth. She is also a trained mediator with experience mediating disputes involving consumer debt, family law, and personal injury litigation.

Prior to joining Thompson Coe, she gained trial and litigation experience through representing insurers, companies, and individuals in disputes involving insurance coverage, personal injury torts involving catastrophic injury or death, and breach of contract claims resulting in favorable resolutions for her clients.

She has obtained summary judgments in favor of her clients, and she has tried cases to juries across North Texas resulting in favorable verdicts, including a state court case resulting in a defense verdict in 2016. She regularly advises clients in risk management, including liability assessments and corporate investigations in events of catastrophic loss.
