Ashley Feldt is an experienced trial attorney specializing in trucking accidents, premises liability claims, construction litigation, and claims involving personal injury, wrongful death, and other catastrophic losses. She has extensive experience representing clients from small, family-owned businesses to Fortune 100 companies.

She is passionate about ensuring that every client feels informed and confident about every aspect of the claim at every step of the litigation process. Ashley prides herself on communicating effectively, transparently, and strategically with clients and other attorneys, which has aided in her negotiating countless favorable results for her clients and demystifying the litigation process for them.

Before joining Thompson Coe, Ashley was an attorney representing major insurance companies in their energy and transportation sectors. Ashley also served as an Assistant District Attorney in Denton and Dallas Counties, trying countless misdemeanor and felony cases to verdict in front of Denton and Dallas county judges and juries.
