(713) 403-8218

David Points focuses his practice on discovery, early exploration of settlement potential, and judicious use of practice.

David believes that it is the carrier's claim, money, and effective representation that inherently entails appropriate litigation to the size and complexity of the matter.

David is focused on representing and advising insurance carriers in matters of coverage and bad faith. He handles a variety of claims in both state and federal court.

Background

As a former plaintiff's attorney, David is well-respected by both sides of the insurance law bar for his professionalism and knowledge. Additionally, personal service and professional excellence are the foundation upon which his insurance law practice is built.
