713-358-6779

Emily Landry focuses on general liability and catastrophic injury. She represents clients in a wide range of litigation matters.

Before attending law school, Emily worked as a paralegal for several small firms, allowing her to gain a foundational knowledge of various areas of law. During law school, she continued developing her legal research and writing skills through her internship for the Honorable Jeffery V. Brown.

Emily understands that litigation is not a “one size fits all” process. With her keen attention to detail and analytical problem-solving approach, Emily is dedicated to helping clients navigate the nuances of each case while keeping their best interests the top priority.
