Israel Flores, Jr. focuses on consumer, lemon law, and breach of warranty defense. He has represented a variety of clients including, foreign and domestic automobile manufacturers, suppliers, and dealerships, across Texas in state and federal courts.

Israel has a comprehensive understanding of all applicable consumer-related legal principles required to defend his clients in any type of litigation asserting violations of the Magnuson-Moss Act and/or Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act, breach of contract, breach of express and implied warranties under the UCC, negligence, and misrepresentation tort claims. He also has experience in litigation arising out of numerous property and personal injury claims stemming from alleged failure of vehicle safety systems, such as airbag litigation, seatbelt litigation, in addition to experience related to seatback performance, roll overs, roof crush, vehicle fires, and crashworthiness.

Over the years, Israel has participated in product and consumer-related multi-district litigation (MDL) in state and federal courts including developing strategies to initiate MDL proceedings, coordinating with opposing counsel to formulate and apply MDL case management orders, overseeing MDL dockets containing hundreds of claims, and closing MDL proceedings. He believes his past experiences and untraditional path to the practice of law in Texas gives his clients an advantage and allows him to effectively assess claims, develop case strategies, conduct discovery with precision focus, and excel during settlement negotiations facilitated by various alternative dispute resolution forums.
