Morgan Bonney is a civil litigator who primarily practices professional liability matters involving lawyers, accountants, insurance agents, real estate brokers, and other professional clients.

Prior to joining Thompson Coe, Morgan practiced as a civil litigation attorney representing clients in a variety of matters, from business litigation and insurance defense to post-judgment collections and creditors' rights. Her previous experience in all phases of litigation has shaped her into an aggressive litigator, and having represented both plaintiffs and defendants gives her a competitive advantage in strategizing and anticipating what an opposing side may do.

Morgan strives to take a personable and empathetic approach with her clients, as well as to keep her clients fully informed and advised during all stages of litigation.

Representative Experience

Obtained a $160,000 payment from a debtor while representing his ex-wife in a post-judgment alimony matter due to my vigorous pursuit of the ex-husband

Investigated debtor who was on the run and "couch surfed" for 18 months to hide his current location from his creditors, and found and arrested him for contempt of court

Obtained summary judgment against con artist who used online dating apps to defraud people out of their money

Represented Firearm Distribution company in post-judgment collection and obtained a sizable settlement agreement with the debtor on behalf of the client.

Participated in and oversaw multiple depositions and mediations in various matters.

Conducted mediations with and depositions on opposing parties in various matters.

Representation of out-of-state residential complex in domesticating foreign judgment and post-judgment garnishment of debtors' accounts.

Representation that involved tracking down a debtor actively evading my client's judgment for years, and who was also hiding from various other creditors. Debtor had no permanent address and "couch surfed" from place to place, only staying somewhere for about a week before moving on. After thorough research and detective work, I found the debtor and had the Constable arrest him and brought before the Judge for contempt, who compelled the debtor to hand-write his discovery responses or else be confined to jail for contempt.

Representation of a real estate agent who had obtained a judgment from a debtor who was on the run from him. Conducted thorough research and interviews with family members of the debtor, which compelled the debtor to finally appear at our office and produce discovery responses in person.

Representation of a man who was defrauded by a disreputable collections firm, which resulted in a settlement amount that covered the entire amount owed.

Representation of restaurant supply company against various restaurant owners for non-payment of sold goods in pre- and post-judgment matters.
